Bartering Away India's Shipping

Lord Lloyd's Charity At Other's Expense

Erulkar Exposes British Methods

Now "Begging On Knees For 50 Per Cent From Japan"!

WILL INDIA GOVT. IMPLEMENT ITS PROMISES?

Special To "Chronicle"

LONDON, Jan. 31.

It is understood Mr. David Erulkar has sent a letter to "The Times" in reply to Lord Lloyd's letter to "The Times". Lord Lloyd declares Japanese Merchant Shipping Lines have demanded an immediate share of 61 p. c. of trade between Calcutta and Japan, leaving the British Empire Lines only 39 p. c. and have so far shown no disposition to agree to the compromise suggested by the British Empire Lines. on the basis of 50 p. c. Lord Lloyd further maintains that in the trade between Bombay and Japan, the Japanese lines carry over 80 p. c. of traffic from Bombay to Japan, and over 89 p. c. from Japan to Bombay.

JAPAN'S CLAIMS

Japan also claims that 73 p. c. of tonnage employed in trade between Japan and India is Japanese. He contends it is evident that not content with having grasped nearly three-quarters of India's carrying trade to the East, the Japanese are preparing a further intensified campaign to capture the remaining quarter. He concludes in the interest of both imperial economics and defence, it is obvious that the Empire must take notice of the situation so fraught with danger to imperial interests.

A STRIKING CONTRAST.

Interviewed, Mr. Erulkar declared that British shipping has all along been relentless in its hostility towards the efforts of Indian shipping to establish itself in India's foreign maritime trade. This attitude on the part of British shipping is in striking contrast to its present attitude of begging on its knees for Japanese shipping to accept 50 p.c. basis of trade from Calcutta to Japan, which compromise Lord Lloyd is audacious enough to extol as an equitable compromise. British shipping interests can afford to be generous in bartering away what legitimately belongs to Indian shipping. However, this affords an excellent opportunity for the Indian Government to implement its hitherto verbal promises for the development of Indian shipping in foreign trade, by insisting that any such arrangement as now proposed for the division of India's carrying trade between British and Japanese shipping, shall not ignore the legitimate share of Indian shipping.

JAWAHAR'S NARROW ESCAPE

Driver's Alertness Averts Accident

JHANSI, Jan. 30.

Pandit Jawaharlal Nehru had a narrow escape to-day when, thanks to the driver's alertness, his car just missed dashing fulltilt against a bullock cart on the road from Jhansi to Orai. It appears that a lorry preceding the Pandit's car left a trail of dust behind, obscuring the visibility and the driver could not see the line of carts ahead till the car was only a few paces from them. He jammed the brakes, but could not avoid slight collision with one of the carts, damaging the mudguard.

The occupants of the car, Pandit Jawaharlal and Mr. Kher who was accompanying the Congress President on the tour, received severe shaking as a result of which Mr. Kher was complaining of pain all over his body.

The second car behind the Pandit's, carrying the loud speaker equipment collided with a milestone, sustaining damage, but its occupants were not injured.—A. P.

Mahatma On Dominion Status

Explains "Independence" In Letter To Polak

BOMBAY, January, 31.

Will Mahatma Gandhi accept Dominion Status which he said he would at the Round Table Conference of 1931?

Mahatma Gandhi has stated in clear manner that he is still prepared to accept Dominion Status in terms of the Statute of Westminster in a letter dated the 27th January, 1937, addressed to Mr. H. S. L. Polak, who has been in India now for some months and who is about to leave India. Mr. Polak in releasing Gandhiji's letter through the "United Press" for publication, observes thus:—

"I am about to leave India after a business visit of some months' duration, in the course of which I have taken the opportunity of meeting a number of old friends with whom I have talked about political, social and economic developments in this country.

"Among those whom I have met has, of course, been Mahatma Gandhi with whom the personal tie has always been so close. In the early part of this month, I had the pleasure of seeing him at Shegaon, when I discussed a number of matters with him in order to learn his point of view from my own personal information.

"COMPLETE INDEPENDENCE"

"In the course of one of these talks, I asked Mahatma Gandhi, if he would tell me exactly what he meant by the phrase "Complete Independence", as it was one that lent itself to a number of interpretations. The definition that he gave me appeared to be of such importance that I asked him if he would let me have it in writing, in precise language, with a view to publication. He unhesitatingly agreed, and he has now sent me the following letter:—

RIGHT TO SECEDE.

"My dear Henry,

Owing to the pilgrimage to Travancore, it has not been possible for me to write to you earlier. Your question is whether I retain the same opinion I did as at the R.T.C. of 1931. I said then and repeat now that so far as I am concerned, if Dominion Status were offered in terms of the Statute of Westminster, i. e., the right to secede at will, I would unhesitatingly accept it.

Yours sincerely,

BHAI"

"ESCAPE FROM DEAD PAST"

Roy Shows Way How To Build Future

POONA, Jan. 31.

Having been denied the use of the public hall in which Mr. Roy was to address, the Young Socialist League arranged a meeting, this morning, at the residence of Mr. Jedhe, M.L.A., Mr. Roy spoke on Indian renaissance, and said that the process of philosophical revolution and intellectual readjustment and revaluation of antiquated traditions was necessary before India became politically independent. Such reconstruction had been denied and obstructed by the intervention of a powerful factor. "We must escape from the dead past, if we stand with our faces turned to the back and try to go forward, we shall not make progress." He added: "It is like having a car set in reverse gear." Appealing for a critical approach to the problem, Mr. Roy said "there will be no salvation till we realise that future can only be built on the ruins of the past."

Mr. Roy visited several institutions in the city to-day and met Poona journalists at a meeting, Mr. N. C. Kelkar, presiding, when he spoke of the very important part the press played in the fight against imperialism.—A.P.

Surat Challenge To Mr. Jinnah

Independent Candidate Questions League Methods

SIR A. M. K. DEHLAVI FORCED TO RETIRE WITHOUT ADDRESSING

(FROM A CORRESPONDENT.)

At the public meeting of the Muslims of Surat and Rander which was held under the Presidentship of Sardar Nawab Hafiuddin Khan, Mr. Jinnah, President of the All-India Muslim League, delivered a short speech on the policy of the League and appealed to the Muslims to co-operate with the League. No sooner he finished his speech Mr. Mohammad Hafiz Golandaz, the Independent candidate, who is a candidate for the election from the Surat and Rander Constituency against Sir A. M. K. Dehlavi put the following questions:—

Whether Sir A. M. K. Dehlavi had sent his application for the League ticket along with the pledge duly signed by the 31st October, the last date for submitting the applications.

If the pledge was not signed in time, how and why his application was legally entertained.

Mr. Golandaz was going to put further questions but Mr. Jinnah at once got up and said, "I am not going to answer such questions." You ought to have appealed to the Board, "I have adopted him," etc., whereupon Mr. Golandaz took out some papers and wanted to prove his statements by some facts but the President interrupted and stopped him. Upon this the audience was much excited. Mr. Golandaz wanted satisfactory explanation for the guidance of the public and addressing Mr. Jinnah he said that he was the first man in the whole of Surat and Rander who espoused the cause of the League during this election campaign with all the sincerity of purpose, but after all the President got up and said such questions should not be asked whereupon the audience said: "Why not"? Others said Zinda Bad Golandaz. The President then looking to the attitude of the audience abruptly dispersed the meeting.

Sir A. M. K. Dehlavi who was to speak could not say a word and the whole meeting was dispersed in tense excitement.

Insurance Legislation In India

ganisation staff. There is a vast difference between the Managing Agency remuneration and manager's annual pay. Further with regard to the Managing Agency remuneration it could be explicitly said that after some years of the Company's life, their existence becomes quite superfluous and they earn fabulous amounts without doing much for them. But in the case of other industrial and other institutions, as they have risked something in the beginning for their future benefit, at least they have a reason to continue for some years but not indefinitely for any length of time. Therefore, there cannot be any question of Managing Agency for any insurance company in the new Legislation.

The foundation of the Insurance Companies is their good hard working agents. A company's present and future prosperity solely depends upon their best and proper selection of agents to enlist policyholders. It is mostly upon the trust and confidence of the local agents, that public join those companies. The masses may not know of the Directorate much less the working of them. Local representatives instil confidence and trust in the Directorate and the management and they are induced to join as policyholders. There are a troop of educated and cultured men. Formerly there was not much recognition for their profession, as they were mainly formed of not much education to know the science of Insurance. But now-a-days as the population of the educated men is growing day by day, a larger body of these men have taken up this occupation and consequently dignity and respect for this occupation has doubly increased.

It is suggested by the Insurance Companies' Committee that licensing of the agents should be introduced. This is really good. Before an agent is taken up by any company certain educational qualification is to be fixed which should be provided in the bill itself. It should be made compulsory that agents should have an independent training class under experts who are experienced in the art of canvassing in theory and practice.

All India and Indian Insurance companies are unanimous that Indian companies need protection against formidable foreign companies in their own country just as they have in their own country. Indian companies are just growing and thus find it very difficult to fight against odds. At least for some years, it should be provided in the Bill to prohibit entry of any more foreign companies and it should be made obligatory for the present working companies to publish figures of Indian business separately and deposit all the insurance premiums collected in India alone and bring all the foreign companies under the new Act with regard to Indian business, as if they are registered in India.

It is earnestly desired that Indian policyholders should take more interest in the present situation. They should take steps to ventilate their views and bring them to the notice of the Government. The responsibility of Indian national leaders is equally great and even more. The masses have kept implicit faith in their true leaders to lead and guide them in this complicated legislation. It is earnestly requested that the Government also will take proper care to protect the interest of the policyholders in every possible way.

MYSORE BAN ON KAMALADEVI

Adjournment Motion Disallowed By Dewan

(From A Correspondent.)

BANGALORE, (By Mail).

In Mysore Legislative Council which met in the Council Hall at Bangalore on the 25th January, the Congress Members moved an adjournment motion for discussion of the order of the District Magistrate of Bangalore and Mysore, prohibiting Mrs. Kamaladevi from delivering speeches during her recent visit to Mysore.

The motion was disallowed by the Dewan.

GOOD MORNING!

Wake with a smile—enjoy the deep sleep of childhood—banish headaches, lassitude, 'nerves,' 'sluggish liver' etc.—after trying a short course of chocolate CASTOPHENE, the marvellous internal cleanser!

CONSTIPATION—THE CAUSE OF MOST HUMAN ILLS!

Poisonous waste in the intestines affects the entire system—blood, nerves, organs and brain! To be perfectly healthy, and free from headaches, 'nerves,' indigestion, colds, influenza etc., it is therefore necessary to relieve intestinal congestion (or CONSTIPATION), by taking CASTOPHENE occasionally!

A PERFECT COMPLEXION

You can win back youthful freshness, the clear healthy complexion of your school-girl self if you rid the system of poisonous waste by taking a tablet of CASTOPHENE every day! Tone the stomach—relieve indigestion and intestinal congestion—that is the recipe for radiant health and beauty! Men and women who rely on CASTOPHENE enthusiastically agree that there is no better way to physical fitness.

CHILDREN LIKE CASTOPHENE!

CASTOPHENE is like chocolates . . . to look at and eat. Children take it readily. It can be given them without risk—for CASTOPHENE stimulates the intestines very gently . . . without harming delicate stomach linings or intestinal walls! It is essentially a modern laxative—efficient, mild and delightful!

"THE EFFECT WAS MARVELLOUS!"

13, Vincent Square, Dadar, (Bombay).

A friend of mine casually mentioned to me Castophene as being harmless but none the less an effective laxative. I must say that I am rather sceptic at about these advertised medicines, but just to please my friend I gave the thing a trial. The effect was marvellous, and I have no hesitation in recommending it to the public.

Surprise Victories For Milwall And Exeter

ARSENAL & SHEFFIELD UNITED SURVIVE FOURTH ROUND

The conditions for football were generally appalling. There was either snow, frost, ice, water, rain or wind and the ball was very heavy. Yet 400,000 braved the conditions but they were not rewarded by much class play.

Conditions may well have accounted for the fact that not a single away team won and for the surprise wins of Milwall and Exeter, Milwall was minus their outside right, Thomas, who was suddenly taken ill and theirs was a much deserved victory. Derby played fast and open football and led 2|0 at halftime.

The cupholders, Arsenal, and the runners-up, Sheffield United both survived the fourth round—the former easily, the latter with the greatest difficulty although they fielded nine of last year's finalists. Wolverhampton were on top throughout, despite the absence of Bryn Jones, the Welsh International inside-right whom the Arsenal are anxious to sign on. The wolves led 1|0 and 2|1.

All the Arsenal forwards, Bastin Kirchen, Davidson and Drake—except James scored. This was Drakes first cup tie for the Arsenal. They had scored 4|0 at halftime.

TWO UNLUCKY TEAMS

Leicester were unlucky in that Smith, right-half and Captain was absent for most of the game but Exeter were very aggressive though Leicester scored first, but at half-time Exeter led 2-1. Leicester threw away many chances of equalising in the final stages.

Luton were really unlucky as there would be no cause for sensation at their beating Sunderland. They deservedly led 2-0 at half-time and continued to play a very good game till the fifty-eighth minute when corner reduced against the run of play. Seven minutes later, Dunns equalised but Luton should have scored a winner in the closing stages when Payne, usually very safe, missed an easy shot.

STROKE CITY'S MISFORTUNE

Stock City suffering badly from 'flu had six of their first teamers absent. They led 1-0 at half-time but Preston rallied and Frank Donnell scored a brilliant hat-trick. Especially, in view of the advantage of the home team—Norwich's draw was one of the best efforts of the day's play. There was no score at half-time.

Astley Derby's international centre-forward accomplished a hat-trick, and in view of the fact that they were minus crooks, international winger who was injured, Derby's was an excellent performance.—Reuter.

IMPLICATIONS OF FEDERATION

Princes Chamber Finance Committee Submits Report

NEW DELHI, Jan. 30.

The Finance Committee of the Chamber of Princes which concluded its labours a few days ago has submitted its report to his Highness the Chancellor.

This Committee was presided over by the Nawab of Bhopal, with whom was associated Sir Bhupendra Mitra, lately High Commissioner for India, and Mr. Manu Subedar, a well-known Financial expert.

The report, which is believed to be a short document, principally devotes itself to the examination of the financial implications of the federal constitution. It refers to the Memoranda submitted separately by the two experts.

From lobby talks it appears that the committee have very carefully examined the specific provisions of the constitution act for levying of taxation as they affected the Indian states and specially recommended that before reaching final conclusions in respect of the financial implications of the federal scheme, the budget of the Government of India for the year 1937-38 should be carefully examined. The recommendation, if accepted, is likely further to postpone the final decision regarding accession, till march next.

It will be remembered that in his statement before the Joint Parliamentary Committee, Sir Akbar Hydari, on behalf of the states, submitted that the accession of states to the Federation depends, among other considerations, on the budget of the Central Government being balanced. Great importance therefore attaches to the next budget. With regard to this point there seems to be some suspicion that the revenues which a federated state will have to contribute are over and above: (a) what its people are already contributing through taxes levied by the British Indian Government under their existing powers and (b) what the state is contributing through special contributions.—A P.

CONGRESS WORKERS ASSAULTED

Incident At Kamgar Maidan Meeting

(From A Correspondent.)
BOMBAY, Sunday.

"Two workers of the Congress working at present in support of the Congress candidate in the 'G' Ward were assaulted at Kamgar Maidan, Parel, on Sunday evening. They are Messrs B. G. Rane and Trimbak Dattatraya Pant, who are also members of the Managing Committee of the Bombay Girni Kamgar Union.

They had casually attended the propaganda meeting in support of Mr. Joglekar's candidature. After the meeting some of Mr. Joglekar's men invited Messrs Rane and Trimbak and when they went near, they were surrounded by the group of nearly twenty-five. Some of these men began to question Mr. Rane why he was not working for Mr. Joglekar in the "E" and "F" Wards. When Mr. Rane began to explain the position some of these persons who had surrounded him attacked both Messrs Rane and Trimbak.

It is reported that Messrs Bhogale, Tambitkar and Nimbkar were standing near and were witnessing the assault. Mr. Rane got blows on his neck and shoulder. While Mr. Trimbak received blows on his chest and his shirt and coat were completely torn. While the assault continued some of the more enthusiastic began shouting anti-Congress slogans, while "Ambedkar Zindabad" was also shouted by some.

Messrs Rane and Trimbak tried their best to ward off the attack, and hearing the anti-Congress slogans the other people also gathered there and rescued them."

PARLE OVERBRIDGE TANGLE

Citizens Protest Against Municipal Decision

(From Our Correspondent.)
VILE PARLE, Jan. 31.

The members of the Vile Parle Municipality came in for severe criticism at the hands of several speakers at a largely-attended public meeting of the citizens of Vile Parle held at Tilak Mandir last night. Mr. Jog presided. Mr. Ramnikrai Mehta, President of the Vile Parle Congress Committee moved a resolution emphatically declaring the meeting's disapproval of the Municipality's resolution accepting a Marwadi gentleman's offer to construct at his cost a railway foot bridge at Ansari Road subject to certain terms as both the proposed site of the bridge and the terms given by him were prejudicial to the interests of a large majority of the public.

The meeting also expressed its resentment against the Municipal President's action in allowing the resolution to come up for the Board's consideration without putting it on the agenda and thus springing a surprise on the public whose wishes in regard to it were well-known to him. By another resolution the meeting requested the Municipality to rescind the resolution and expedite their original scheme of constructing the bridge near the station to which the Municipality already stood committed and which was inordinately delayed.

The resolution was carried amidst scenes of great enthusiasm. A committee was appointed to take the necessary steps to give effect to the resolution.

WOMEN'S PROTEST.

Earlier in the day, a well-attended Ladies' meeting was held at Tajpal Hall, Mrs. Chandrabai Pardhy presiding. The meeting declared its emphatic opinion that the overbridge to which the Municipality stood committed should be constructed only near the existing railway bridge. The meeting also resolved that the Municipality should take the responsibility of any other bridge only after completing the original one and urged upon the Municipality to take into consideration the convenience of the majority of the public and construct the bridge near the railway station. Several speakers made speeches appropriate to the occasion.

DON'T BE TAKEN IN BY SUGAR-COATED WORDS OF OPPONENTS, SAYS NAGINDAS

Renewed warnings against misleading propaganda were voiced forth by several speakers at a public meeting held at Chowpatty on Sunday evening, under the auspices of the Girgaum District Congress Election Committee.

Mr. Nagindas T. Master, who presided over the meeting, in the absence of Mrs. Sarojini Naidu, exhorted the voters not to be led away by the sugar-coated words of those candidates styling themselves as "Independents", as such persons were seeking entry into legislatures for no one's benefit.

Congress as the supreme organisation in the country was alone capable of delivering the 'goods' and it was, therefore, the duty of the voters to support the Congress candidates.

Mr. P. R. Lele stressed that all the voters in the D Ward, who were eligible to vote in the General Constituencies, were also entitled to vote for the election in which Mrs. Annapurnabai Deshmukh was contesting as the official Congress nominee.

HAVE YOU DONE YOUR DUTY?

"Have you done your duty?" This should be the question on the lips of every citizen whether he is a voter or not, and this question should be addressed to every voter in the city. No one should abstain from going to the polls, as every vote was valuable.

Mrs. Annapurnabai Deshmukh observed that the voters obtained their franchise mainly through the incessant fight put up by the Congress for adult franchise and it was their duty to support the Congress candidate.

Mr. D. S. Babrekar referred to certain pamphlets issued by some of the opponents of the Congress and warned the voters against this sort of misleading propaganda which sought to divert the attention of the voters from the main issue of independence.

APPEAL TO PARSIS

He appealed to the Parsi community to rise to the occasion by discarding narrow communalism if there was any tinge of it in their midst and stand solidly by the only powerful organisation which toiled for the benefit of all people without any discrimination.

Mr. Joachim Alwa, the Congress candidate for the Christian seat, wondered where all these gentlemen were when heads of hundreds of people were broken in the city of Bombay and outside in the name of law and order.

Mr. S. K. Patil said that reports from every corner of India were most encouraging and he was sure that Bombay which occupied the foremost place in the nation's struggle would again vindicate the honour of the Congress. If the masses in the rural areas of Orissa, who were poverty-stricken, uphold the prestige and the glory of the Congress in that province, would not the enlightened and patriotic voters of Bombay give a similarly glorious account of themselves?

Gupte Beats Charanjiva In Singles

E. V. BOBB AND J. CHARANJIVA WIN DOUBLES

Mixed-Doubles Won By Miss Sausoni And Bobb In Parsi Gymkhana Tournament

BOMBAY, Sunday.

Before a distinguished gathering, including Mr. Justice Nusserwanjee Engineer and Mrs. Engineer, who presented the trophies, the Parsi Gymkhana open Lawn Tennis Tournament concluded, at the Kennedy Sea Face, on Sunday afternoon.

Court No. 1, where Charanjiva and Gupte, started the programme this afternoon, in the Men's Singles final, was the centre of attraction. Charanjiva who is a hot favourite of the Tennis enthusiasts of Bombay, fell short of their expectations by playing much below his usual form this afternoon and lost the singles title to Gupte in two straight sets. Gupte deserves great credit for defeating his formidable opponent at (6—4), (6—3), executing several winning shots with clever placements, more particularly in the second set.

KEEN TUSSLE.

On the adjoining court, a keen tussle was going on between Bobb Miss Sausoni and Blake-Miss Dinshaw in the unfinished final set of the previous day, the former pair winning at (6—1), (4—6), (7—5). This match was productive of tennis of a high class and the losers gave an anxious time to their opponents, Bobb and Miss Sausoni, who won the Mixed doubles beating Mrs. Bell and Tew in the finals after another strenuous match, in which all the four exhibited a variety of strokes. The Winners, Miss Sausoni and Bobb, should be congratulated for though they were tired after their match with Miss Dinshaw and Blake, they acquitted themselves very well and it was a treat to watch them placing their shots, mostly fore-hand, in the corners of the court with remarkable accuracy.

The final of the Men's doubles between Charanjiva and Bobb on one side and Mylton and Tew on the other, was a closely-contested match, a feature of which was the fine forceful service of Tew who won many points on it's strength. The issue was in doubt for a time and it was rather difficult to spot the winners but evidently Bobb and Charanjiva, who were more experienced, won the match, which provided exhilarating tennis, at (6—4),, (6—4).

TEST OF PATIENCE.

The Ladies Doubles final, between Miss Sausoni—Miss Talyarkhan and Miss M. Dinshaw—Miss P. Dinshaw, was a test of patience and perseverance; all the four playing a very slow and steady game and each point being decided after several rallies. The winners annexed the first set with considerable ease but the second set produced the best play of the match, Miss M. Dinshaw volleyed well and her "sliced" strokes were nicely executed.

Before asking Mrs. Nusserwanjee Engineer to give away the trophies, Dr. M. E. Pavri, the Chairman of the tournament Committee, thanked all the competitors who had taken part in the tournament in true sportsman-like spirit. Continuing Dr. Pavri paid a tribute to Mr. Justice Engineer's skill in tennis and reminded him of his younger days when he used to be a very hard-working tennis player.

The tournament which had to be hurriedly gone through owed it's successful progress and conclusion to the tireless efforts of Mr. H. N. Contractor, the Honorary Secretary, Mr. F. R. Ratnagar and other members of the committee.

The Results

MEN'S SINGLES.
A. G. Gupte beat J. Charanjiva (6—4), (6—3).

MEN'S DOUBLES.
E. V. Bobb andJ Charanjiva beat J. E. Tew and G. L. Mylton (6—4), (6—4).

MIXED DOUBLES.
Miss D. Sausoni and E. V. Bobb beat Mrs. W. A. Bell and J. E. Tew (7—5), (6—4).

LADIES DOUBLES.
Miss M. Dinshaw and Miss P. Dinshaw beat Miss D. Sausoni and Miss Talyarkhan (6—2), (6—4).

INDIAN RAILWAYS

The Report of the Railway Board on Indian Railways for the year 1935-36 shows some improvement in several directions, but on the whole the position is still far from satisfactory. A total deficit of four crores of rupees forbids any complacence. There is, however, a redeeming feature that the deficit is Rs. 107 lakhs less than it was last year and that the gross traffic receipts increased during the year by Rs. 45 lakhs from Rs. 90.20 crores. The increase by itself is but slight, being only .5 per cent. But the fact that passenger and goods earnings show an improvement of 25 lakhs each encourages the hope that the trend towards trade revival may be more pronounced in the near future. One cannot, however, be too sure about the future and every attempt, compatible with the nature of a public utility, must be made to increase earnings and reduce working expenses.

Need For Over-Hauling

To achieve these ends it is necessary to overhaul both the policy and the management of our railways. The best method of increasing earnings is, not to raise freights and rates every time there is a deficit—that has often aggravated the very difficulty sought to be remedied—but so to reduce and adjust them and so to increase the general amenities provided to the passengers and the importers and exporters of goods as to popularise travel and stimulate business. And sooner or later these improvements are bound to increase railway earnings. The Report shows that some improvements in this direction are already being tried, such as improvement of train services, introduction of reduced single and return journey fares, introduction of reduced freight rates, running of light and additional trains and introduction of rebate on railway freight for certain commodities, e.g., rice, speeding up of time of goods in transit, improvement in booking and delivery arrangements, issue of road-cum-rail tickets and stopping of trains at level crossings adjacent to big villages for entraining and detraining passengers. But a great deal more still remains to be done, particularly in making travel by third class more endurable.

Support Swadeshi

Much also needs to be done in respect of purchasing the railway stores in India. It is gratifying to note that the value of stores imported direct by the State-managed railways decreased from Rs. 103.23 lakhs in 1931-32 to Rs. 6.37 lakhs in 1935-36 and the value of indigenous stores purchased by these railways increased from 547 lakhs in 1931-32 to 614 lakhs in the year under report. But it is significant to note, in striking contrast to these figures, that in the case of the Company-managed railways the corresponding reduction in the value of imported stores was but slight, from 141 to 123 lakhs, and the increase in the value of indigenous stores purchased was also slight, from 264 to 290 lakhs.

Essential Reforms

As regards the management of the railways, an essential reform is that all should be managed by the State, without any important one being in the hands of a private company. We shall not dwell on this point at any length now and would only refer to the illuminating article on the subject by "A Student of Railway History", published in our columns on Saturday last. It is also essential that the entire railway service and the Railway Board should be Indianised in the immediate future. The present pace of Indianisation in the higher services is extremely slow. The Report shows that the percentage of Indians in the gazetted ranks of the State-managed railways and in the corresponding grades of the principal Company-managed railways was only 41.27 in 1935 as against 40.02 in 1935. The most essential reform is that the Railway Board must be made wholly responsible to the Indian Legislature. Unless and until this reform is ecected Indian railways cannot be really Indian in their policy and cannot fully subserve the interests of the Indian nation.

"Gleam Of Hope"?

Herr Hitler has been re-elected Governing President of the Reichstag. There is nothing unexpected in it. But there is something unexpected in his much awaited Saturday speech. The Fuhrer did not spring any surprises save one, namely, to declare that the era of his surprises was at an end. His speech, because of its being unusually restrained and polite in language, has been welcomed in certain rather optimistic quarters as affording a gleam of hope. As a matter of fact, the Americans are more correct in regarding it as disappointing. The utmost that can be said about it is what is contained in a later London message: "Marking time, rather than advancing matters, is the general impression of Herr Hitler's speech in London. The pronouncement that the era of surprises is over is regarded as excellent as far as it goes, but it is observed that the era of collaboration has seemingly not yet begun."

There are no surprises, because Herr Hitler, who is nothing if not shrewd, realises that neither the time nor the situation is ripe for any of the surprises which he would like with his usual—and now self-confessed—audacity to spring. That he has a few in contemplation may be taken for granted because he has said nothing which may be construed as committing him to any constructive course in any sphere of international endeavour. His demand for old colonies has been reiterated; Mr. Eden's offer of economic co-operation has been more or less ignored; the Nazi position regarding Spain still constitutes a contradiction of Britain's position which accepts the right of Spain to choose its own form of Government; and as regards armament, Germany is to remain the sole judge of what she needs. Thus there is no advance and, in fact, the situation is full of menacing possibilities even now.

A significant Berlin message says: "Herr Hitler's gestures were liveliest when referring to the League of Nations. And when he referred to Mr. Eden, he frequently raised his eye-brows and ironically shrugged his shoulders." It is obvious that the Fuhrer means neither peace nor collaboration. He is trying in his own way to take the measure of the great Powers for the purpose of his next move. Above all, he is trying to discover the chances of success against an audacious anti-Russian adventure: he wants to find out whether the so-called Great Powers will betray and desert Russia also for the latter's crime of having consistently honoured her obligations to international peace and collective security in glaring contrast to the behaviour of Italy and Germany.

Defeats Its Purpose

After repeated allegations of official interference in the elections which are proceeding at the moment in most provinces, the passing of Doctor Khan Sahib's amended resolution—originally placed before the Assembly at its Simla Session—is too late by several months. Sir Mahomed Yaqub's amendment, moreover, has robbed it of much of its direct force and unnecessarily armed the executive authorities with wide powers which they may often be tempted to abuse. It is necessary, of course, that "public servants did not interfere directly or indirectly" in the elections. But one fails to see any justification for investing them with vaguely defined functions and powers. "Demonstrations which are likely to cause breach of peace" and "singing of provocative songs and slogans" are such vague terms which can be interpreted with dangerous latitude. The executive officials in India have already too large powers to need any further enlargement of their jurisdiction. And past experience has shown how such powers are abused in suppressing all forms of real political activity. In view of this, we are afraid the latter portion of the resolution encourages the evil which the earlier part seeks to curb.

OUR READERS' VIEW

Vote For Munshi

To The Editor of "The Chronicle."

Sir,—I have this day received an appeal from Dr. B. G. Vad, for my vote from the University Graduates' Electorate for the Bombay Legislative Assembly. I have given Dr. Vad. the following reply:—

"As you have deliberately chosen to oppose the Official Congress Candidate, Mr. Munshi, I do not think you will respect my request to you to withdraw in favour of Mr. Munshi, and let the Congress have the satisfaction of having their Official candidate elected unopposed by the Graduates; And YET I am deliberately requesting you to withdraw from the contest, and thus unmistakably show your respect for the Great National Institution, which is fighting the peoples' battle for assertion of our National honour and self-respect. I wonder if I am putting too much strain upon your Nationalism.

At a time when the straight issue is "Congress versus Imperialism and anti-National elements", my vote can only be cast for the Congress Candidate and I have to inform you frankly that I cannot see my way to vote for you. Believe me, human as I am, I cannot permit claims of Professional Brotherhood, personal predilections or my likes and dislikes of individuals to sway me from my well-known convictions and the dictates of my conscience in this matter so vitally and openly affecting our National Honour. I may also state that if my influence counts for anything, I will try to persuade other voters also to cast their votes for the Congress Candidate not because he is either a friend or a Gujerati or because I respect him more as an individual than I do you. "But because he is the Congress Candidate."

One word more before I conclude. It is stated in the appeal that Dr. Vad's nomination has been backed by Dr. Geo. Coelho and Dr. B. B. Yodh, along with many others. Knowing as I do these gentlemen, I can only permit myself to say—I am very much surprised.—Yours, etc.,

S. K. VAIDYA.

Insurance Legislation In India

To The Editor of "The Chronicle"

Sir,—It has been recommended by the Indian Insurance Legislation Committee that representation of Policyholders' Directors in the composite insurance companies is superfluous for the healthy growth of Insurance companies. Their important point of contention is that there is conflicting interest in the General companies which are doing both Life Insurance as well as other kinds of general branches of Insurance, as the total fund of such companies includes those of all branches together and consequently the Policyholders' Directors cannot be a party along with other shareholders' Directors in deciding various issues with reference to both. No doubt it is true that Policyholders' Directors have not much interest in the general branches of Insurance except Life Insurance. But that minor issue should not prompt general Insurance Companies to recommend their exclusion completely from the Directorate.

As the Companies grow bigger and bigger, after some years, shareholders' capital will be negligible or insignificant in proportion to the Policyholders' Fund. Therefore, is it too much that the Policyholders should claim more or equal representation in the Directorate? But such Directors should be distributed in the various Presidencies or separate units according to the number of eligible policyholders in each unit. Election should be by proxies of the eligible voters but not by mere presence at the time of election at the place of meeting.

Even if there is any necessity for the existence of Managing Agency in the cases of Industrial and Banking Institutions for their all-round development and especially for financing them in the early period of their life time, it cannot be so in the case of Insurance Companies. But every thing depends upon a capable man at the helm of affairs to manage, organise and keep up the standard of effiency at the office and or-the railway, the shareholders may receive the maximum price for their stock. We have in this one of the real forms of economic drain. State ownership and management would retain this premium for India."

Eden Explains British Government's Policy

From Our Own Correspondent

LONDON, Jan. 20. (By Air Mail.)

This day last year King George V died and to-day Britain is devoting herself to perpetuate the late King's memory by collecting odd shillings and pence to provide playing fields for children throughout the country. To-night bank officials will be busy as they have received instructions from thousands of their customers to transfer those odd shillings and pence which may be to their credit after the closing hours in the afternoon. Thus the memory of the King who passed from them exactly a year ago will be honoured by Britishers to-day.

Eden On Spain

With the resumption of Parliament, we had an official statement from Mr. Eden, the Foreign Secretary, on the international situation with special reference to Spain. He made an appeal to Germany to co-operate in bringing about the appeasement of Europe and the return of prosperity. The appeal sounded more like a gramophone record as similar appeals to Nazi Germany had been made before with this difference that a gramophone record is generally listened to whereas Hitler refuses to listen to Eden's voice in preference to that of Mussolini's and General Franco's. However as usual, the House cheered the Foreign Secretary when he made it plain for the umpteenth time that Germany should not expect help unless she stopped re-arming. "Economic collaboration and political appeasement must go hand in hand" added Mr. Eden. In this he had obviously the support of the whole House, but other passages in his speech dealing with volunteers for Spain enraged members of the Opposition—particularly the suggestion that Britons were risking their lives for the sake of money. He defended the ban on volunteers mainly on the ground that it had become not a question of men going to Spain to fight for their principles, but a question of men being systematically recruited and offered money—as much as £40 a week in the case of aviators with a bonus of £500 for every enemy aeroplane brought down.

When Mr. Gallacher interjected that such terms were offered on behalf of General Franco, Mr. Eden replied with some heat that it did not matter who offered such an inducement. The point was that it was not a question of someone going to Spain to fight for his principles, but a question of someone going to fight for money. This naturally further enraged Mr. Gallacher who challenged the Foreign Secretary to give one instance of a man going to fight for the Spanish Government who was not fighting for his principles. But Mr Eden still declined to give any credit to the men who have joined the International Brigade (Saklatvala Battalion) at a rate, according to Mr. H. N. Brailsford, the organiser, of about 6d a day. However, the British Government thinks, as Mr. Eden hoped in the House, that its action of banning volunteers will be an example to other nations. Incidentally, Mr Maxton and others were surprised to learn from the Minister that the enforcement of the ban was legal inasmuch as the Government, to quote Mr. Eden had enforced the existing law.

Britain's Two Voices?

At the same time, we learnt from the Foreign Secretary that the possibility of foreign control of Spain was exaggerated. He told the House that if any member believed that as the outcome of the war any single foreign Power or any pair of foreign Powers was going to dominate Spain for a generation, to rule its life and control its foreign policy, he was convinced this was a mistaken view. Britain would, of course, be strongly opposed to any such outcome and would not be alone in that opposition. Evidently the Foreign Secretary omits to read Italian and German newspapers which only last week published a special interview with Mussolini for a Nazi paper. "The democracies are done for. They are today, consciously or unconsciously, nothing more than centres of infection, carriers of bacilli, and plague spots for Bolshevism". In entering into a pact with Italy over the Mediterranean, British Government felt that it had tried to let it be thought that Spain had been secured by the Italian undertaking to "respect the status quo". But by this interview Mussolini has left no doubt of what he, at least, means by 'status quo'. In reply to a question from the interviewer whether the establishment of a 'Soviet' republic in any part of Spain, such as Catalonia, would jeopardise the 'status quo' guaranteed by the Anglo-Italian agreement, the Duce answered: 'Of course'. Similarly this morning, General Goering has announced on behalf of Italy, where he had been to confer with Mussolini, and Germany that they will not permit establishment of Soviet rule in Spain and therefore would do everything to help General Franco in succeeding to the Madrid 'gadi'. Thus it is clear that Germany and Italy will not tolerate a victory for the lawful Government of Spain. The 'status quo' they have guaranteed is not the 'status quo' of before the rebellion, but the 'status quo' of century-old reaction. They declare openly that this is the 'status quo' guaranteed by England also.

But Mr. Eden has pretended again and again that the National Government's policy is freedom for the Spanish people to determine for themselves the form of Government they want, without repudiating the interpretation put on the 'status quo' theory by Mussolini and Hitler. Yesterday's statement in the House by the British Foreign Minister has once again strengthened the belief that the British Government has two voices in Foreign matters as represented by Mr. Eden. So far as Spain in concerned voice No. 1 says non-intervention for the public of Great Britain and voice No. 2 responds to secret promises to Hitler and Mussolini in aid of General Franco.

Support To Spain

In the meantime the democratic forces in Britain are doing all they can to support the lawfully elected Spanish Government by rais-

FRANKLY SPEAKING

LATE MR. V. A. DESAI

The sad news of the death of Mr. Vaikunth A. Desai will be received with general regret in the City. Though of late he had retired from politics, the late Mr. Desai has played a no mean part in the freedom movement. He was an old Congressman and came to be known as a capable organiser. A close associate and co-worker of the late Omar Sobhani, he was actively associated with the Home Rule movement and was among the founders of the Swaraj Sabha and was its Secretary for a number of years. His great ability as an organiser was seen at the time of the Anti-Willingdon Memorial agitation and during the campaign against the Rowlatt Act. He was, perhaps, the pioneer of Congress Volunteer organisation in the City. When the Non-co-operation movement was started, he did not follow lead of many a doughty champion of the Home Rule League in deserting the Congress, but remained loyal to the great national organisation. He was an active member of the B.P.C.C. for many years and was elected its Secretary and to the A.I.C.C. Resourceful and possessed of immense self-confidence, the late Mr. Desai held independent views and his occasional plain and blunt manner of expressing them made him a much-misunderstood man. He was always helpful to his friends and his long experience of public work was a source of strength to the Congress organisations in the City. Despite differences, he was always willing to assist and it is well-known that on more occasions than one his co-operation at critical moments was recognised as of great value. Genial and ever obliging by nature, Mr. Desai made many friends who will long remember him. We express our sincere sympathy with the bereaved family in their great sorrow.

CONVINCING REJOINDER

Mr. Asaf Ali, the Chief Whip of the Congress Party in the Assembly, has issued a timely rejoinder to the Law Member's grounds of opposition to a postponement of the Assembly Session. The situation would have been different, he pertinently points out, "if only the Government also had to contest elections". It is the privilege only of a non-responsible bureaucracy to fix dates of an important session of the legislature when the Opposition is busy fighting a country-wide election. Mr. Asaf Ali has also done well to remind the Government that the Congress Party had promised to economise time and suggested an alternative time-table whereby the session of the Assembly would not have been unduly prolonged even if it started after the elections. It is unlikely that Sir N. N. Sircar would admit the fairness of the Congress viewpoint but any impartial observer can readily see the sheer absurdity of the Government attitude.

DR. DESHMUKH'S BILL

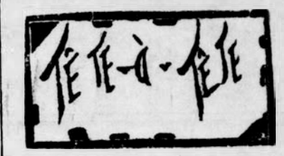
Dr. Deshmukh deserves to be congratulated upon the luck of the ballot which has favoured his Hindu Women's Right to Property Bill, though there is an irony in the fact that the Bill comes for discussion before the Assembly on February 4, when the Congress Party will be absent 'en bloc' from the House. There need be no misapprehension, however, regarding the fate of the Bill, for no serious objection is now expected to any of its provisions from any quarter. It will be remembered that the mover of the Bill himself suggested the restriction of its scope so as to make it apply only to widows, who are given a limited interest in inherited property. 'Prima facie', this measure does not go far enough towards the economic emancipation of women. But Legislative reform in the social sphere is necessarily slow, and Dr. Deshmukh's Bill will, therefore, be widely welcomed, if only because once its principle is generally recognised, its extension is comparatively an easy task.

SIR PERCIVAL PHILLIPS.

Coming, as it does, almost on the eve of another world war, the death of Sir Percival Phillips, one of the most adventurous propagandist-journalists of modern times, must constitute an irreparable loss to the London "Daily Mail". He was a famous war-correspondent and spent practically his whole career on the staff, characteristically, either of Lord Beaverbrooke's well-known "Daily Express" or Lord Rothermere's better-known "Daily Mail." It is now an established fact that in 1914-18 the brilliance of a war-correspondent was composed of two kinds of ability: ability to describe the battles and ability to damn the enemy by attributing every imaginable and unimaginable evil to him. Sir Percival was brilliant and he brought all his brilliance to this country in 1930 when he covered, the Civil Disobedience movement in India by sitting in the sacred and Imperial precincts of the Royal Yacht Club. As a friendly Anglo-Indian Daily says of him "He was particularly well-known in Bombay, where he stayed for some months representing the "Daily Mail" and never relinquished his membership of the Yacht Club." Sir Percival Phillips wrote his dispatches glittering with the war-time brilliance of the "Daily Mail" and breathing that spirit of which the Royal Yacht Club is the solid symbol.

A THOUGHT FOR THE DAY

"The management (of railway companies) is under a constant temptation to which the necessity of retaining custom is the only check, to collect as much from the trade as possible and to give as little back as possible, in the way of conveniences and appliances. If a company's contract, for example, provides that on a given date, Government may determine the contract, paying the administration twenty-five times the average yearly profits of the company during the preceding five years, it is practically certain that every consideration will be rendered subservient to profit-making, so that should Government decide to take over



Rajen Babu wires to Sardar Vallabhbhai: "Reports of terrorism correct but nothing to fear. Prospects of Congress success very bright."

That is what disappoints the opponents. And they will rightly complain of the result as a huge "upset" hurting them no end.

* * * *

The Frontier Reforms Officer expects that about seventy per cent. of the voters will go to the polls.

And the polls, he could quite correctly—if not safely for himself—have added, would send in Congressmen in the same proportion.

* * * *

In addition to Congress, a Hindu-Sikh Party and an Independent Muslim Party in the Frontier, "there are also" says the A.P.I., "eighty-two non-party candidates including the Minister, Sir Abdul Qaiyum."

There is yet time for Mr. Jinnah to inflict his "ticket" on them, since pledge and principles, to say nothing of past and present, do not matter so much to the Muslim League.

* * * *

"Lucknow, January 13.

Information has been received that two Congress cars parked in front of Pandit Govind Malaviya's election office in Partabgarh were burnt down after sprinkling kesene oil on February 29 night. Incendiarism is suspected."—A.P.I.

How surprising! Could you possibly have suspected incendiarism? Of course not.

* * * *

By the way, even though two cars may not have been burnt exactly a year ago at exactly the same time by dacoits or incendiaries, it is the public duty of Minister Sir J.P. (the initials stand for Jwala Prasad not Justice of the Peace) Srivastava's paper, the Pioneer to warn the people of Partabgarh against the extreme likelihood of Congressmen unscrupulously exploiting the incident for electioneering purposes.

* * * *

"The growing cost of maintenance of the vast panoply of armaments reflects the incredible folly of civilisation," gravely stated the British Chancellor of the Exchequer.

And then proceeded to foreshadow "a substantial extension of operations" on armament.

Incredibly foolish? No. It is quite credibly "civilised.' And it is in the Europe of this civilisation which seeks to "civilise" so-called backward peoples with aeroplanes, machine guns, bombs and poison gas.

* * * *

The Chancellor also now foreshadows "a substantial extension of operations in the distressed areas."

We hope the Duke of Windsor possesses a sense of humour.

* * * *

"If" declared Mr. Neville Chamberlain, on Friday, "Herr Hitler to-morrow offered a contribution, his words would find a warm response in Britain."

And Herr Hitler did it "to-morrow." Speaking on Saturday—as usual—he offered a contribution by demanding from Britain the contribution to Germany of her old colonies. Now it is for Britain to decide whether the Fuhrer's word should receive a warm or a hot response.

* * * *

Herr Hitler solemnly declared that that there could not be any conceivable point of dispute between Germany and France.

Quite right. But Herr Hitler specialises in the inconceivable.

* * * *

The Fuhrer wound up his oration by crying, "Peace is our dearest wish."

Which, of course, is fully proved by his passionately sadistic treatment of peace ever since he came to power.

Electors Have To Go To Stations Which Serve Their Letter And Number In Electoral Roll

The public have already been informed of the Polling Stations fixed for each day of the Elections for each Ward of the City, and for the Bombay Suburban District also, and it has been stated that further details can be gathered from the printed list of polling stations which is obtainable from the Collector on payment of 3 annas.

It is a matter of the utmost concern to all Electors that they should study the numbers and letters served in the following lists in order that they may know to which exactly of the stations fixed for their Ward it is that they have to go in order to vote: for Electors cannot go to any one they please of the stations fixed for their Ward. They have to go to that station which serves their particular number and letter in the Electoral Roll.

Electors who know their number in the Electoral Roll should therefore consider where it would fall in relation to the numbers served by the different stations, and direct their steps accordingly.

Anyone not knowing his or her actual number should call to mind the English letter with which his or her own (personal) name (not father's or husband's name) begins, in order to gather the necessary information from the list.

Electors in the Indian Christian Constituency are, however, listed according to their surnames and in their case, therefore, those of them not knowing their numbers should refer to the first letter of their surname.

Trotsky's Challenge To Moscow

Out To Cleanse Atmosphere Of Germs And Deceit

MEXICO CITY, Jan. 31.

"I offer to present my files and a thousand other documents to an International Commission in order to cleanse the atmosphere of germs, deceit calumny and frame-ups" declared Leon Trotsky in an interview wherein he fiercely attacked the organisers of the Moscow Trial.

He added: the trial was not the end. A genuine trial of the organiser of the frame-up was only beginning. We will conduct it to a finish although the proceedings at Moscow resembled a delirium of typhoid fever.—Reuter.

AMERICA CAUTIOUS

"No Common Ground For Co-operation"

WASHINGTON, Jan. 30.

Herr Hitler's speech was eagerly read in the light of the recent discussions here between Mr. Runciman, President Roosevelt and Mr. Cordellhull touching the possibility of reallocation of colonial raw materials. Official circles are reticent but in international quarters, the speech is generally regarded as disappointing and the apparent inability of Herr Hitler, M. Blum and Mr. Eden to speak the same language, much less to find common ground for cooperation, is deplored, as also is Herr Hitler's adamant attitude to the colonial question whilst refusing to make the least concession to the Anglo-French view-point of Exchange.—Reuter.

MADRAS S. O. S. TO ASAF ALI

Satyamurti Asks Him To Attend Assembly To Lodge Protest

MADRAS, Jan. 31.

Mr. Satyamurthy, Secretary, Congress Party, in the Assembly has sent the following telegram to Mr. Asaf Ali to-day:—

"Please attend to-morrow's session and protest strongly against amendments to Rules being proceeded with in our absence."—A.P.

TO OPPOSE CONGRESS IS TO HELP IMPERIALISM

Exhortation To Labour To Vote For Congress

Before a large gathering of Mill-workers Mr. Jinabhai P. Joshi unfurled the National Flag at the Monthly Flag Salutation function organised by the 'F' Ward District Congress Committee.

Addressing the gathering Mr. Jinabhai spoke on the coming elections to the provincial legislatures. He explained the Congress objective and said that the candidates set up by the Congress were going to the legislatures as soldiers of freedom, for carrying out the behests of the Congress.

The Secretary of the Ward Congress Committee in a forceful speech exposed the misleading propaganda of the opponents of the Congress and pointed out how the Congress had espoused the cause of the working-class in its manifesto. Those who talked of the 'Red Flag' and "revolution" in attacking the Congress were by their methods helping Imperialism. The Congress, the speaker, declared was engaged in a great struggle and invited all to join in it so that the slave constitution that was sought to be imposed might be ended and a new constitution embodying the will of the people through the National Constituent Assembly might be forged.

Mr. S. B. Mahadeshwar referred to the Faizpur decision for an All-India hartal on April 1 and said that that hartal would be the first formidable demonstration of the national opposition to the new Constitution.

Mr. S. D. Patil, Secretary of the Girni Kamgar Union (Red Flag) exposed the misleading propaganda of Mr. Nimbkar and his friends and exhorted the workers to vote only for Congress candidates.

The gathering then dispersed.

BIRLA'S DONATION TO GURUKULA KANGRI

Remember Feb. 15, And Vote For Mr. Brelvi

Congress Call To Muslim Voters Of Bombay South Constituency

The Propaganda Secretary of the Bombay Provincial Congress Parliamentary Committee, writes:

On Monday, the 15th of February, Mahomedan voters will be electing their representatives to the Bombay Legislative Assembly. The Congress has put up Mr. Brelvi as the only Congress candidate from the A, B, C, D Wards (Bombay City) Constituency. Each voter has two votes and the Congress wishes that both should be cast in favour of Mr. Brelvi whose symbol is "Chakki".

YOUTHS' DUTY

The Muslim youths are doing well in opposing and exposing the tactics of Muslim leaders like Sir Mahomed Dehlavi. But it is not sufficient for the youths to express their resentment against such tactics in public meetings. All Muslim youths, who value Nationalism and who understand what the Congress stands for must give as much active assistance to Mr. Brelvi as lies within their power. Mr. Brelvi's failure will not be his individual failure but the failure of all Nationalist Muslims. There is only one fortnight left between to-day and the date of Election and during the fortnight all Nationalist Muslims must put in intensive activity to secure success to Mr. Brelvi in the Election to be held on Monday the 15th February, 1937.

Muslims Rally Round Congress Standard

MADRAS, Jan. 30.

"We made a great mistake in not setting up many candidates for Muslim constituencies. We would have won in many places. It has been a most revealing experience that in our district, where the Muslims have the largest population in this province, hundreds of them have come and asked Congress workers as to whom they should vote for and when they were told that there was no Muslim candidate they insisted on voting for the Congress candidate no matter if he was a Hindu.

"On the impossibility of the position being explained many of them went away without voting.—United Press.

PROBLEM BEFORE CONGRESS

MADRAS, Jan. 30.

Babu Rajendra Prasad, in the course of a letter dated Jan. 26, to Mr. C. Rajagopalachari congratulating the latter on his resuming leadership of Madras Congress, says:

"We must take up the work in our own hands in right earnest. As regards other seats, polling is going on and will continue till 29th. From reports received it appears we are going to win practically every seat we are contesting. But of course it is yet too early to say anything with confidence. I hope the same is going to happen in other provinces also.

"There is a tremendous awakening among the masses. This love for and confidence in the Congress is unbounded. May God give us the strength, the courage, the foresight and wisdom to deserve it. I feel overwhelmed when I think of this love and confidence but he will show us the light. This time there is no appeal in Gandhiji's name even in this province. It is all for the Congress, except when false propaganda that Gandhiji is opposed to the programme or a particular candidate has to be contradicted. It is all well that ends well. The great problem that we shall have immediately to tackle is how to make this awakening a lasting thing in our public life and how to utilise it for the good of the country at large."—United Press.

ALL EYES ON BILASPUR

Election Fight In C. P.

NAGPUR: January 30.

The Central Provinces and Berar are passing through intensive election activity. The Congress has set up 79 candidates to contest the elections from the various constituencies. Different parties are opposing the Congress.

The Hindu Mahasabha has set up 25 candidates to oppose the Congress nominees and virulent anti-Congress campaign is being conducted by it. Keenest contests are expected at Bilaspur, Arvil and Nagpur. In Bilaspur, the Hon. Mr. E. Raghavendra Rao is opposing the Congress nominee Mr. K. B.L. Agnihotri and the eyes of the whole province are turned towards Bilaspur. The C. P. LIBELLING SAKLATVALA BRIGADE ing funds, and ambulances in Britain. There is also a suggestion seriously put forward by the Communists that these forces should convene a national emergency conference to plan action on behalf of the Spanish people. Communists, Labourites, Socialists, I. L. P. members and progressive Liberals should strive by all means to ensure that this conference is organised so as to include all working-class and other organisations sympathetic to Spanish democracy. It is felt that a call for such a united national convention for support of the Spanish Republic would be greeted with enthusiasm throughout the democratic movement in Britain.

Labour Split

The irony of this suggestion lies in the fact that there is a probability of a further split in the Labour Party. During the week-end the much awaited Platform of Unity was adopted and endorsed by the representatives of the Socialist League, the I.L.P. and the Communist Party. As a result of this pact with the Communists and the I.L.P. the Parliamentary Labour Party is expected to withdraw the official whip from Sir Strafford Cripps which is tantamount to expulsion. This action will be automatic on the decision of the National Executive of the Labour Party to disaffiliate Sir Stafford Cripps' Socialist League over the "united front" agreement with the Communist Party and the I.L.P. That decision will be taken in about a week's time. Of course, doubt is expressed about the Labour Executive's power to disaffiliate the League. In many quarters it is suggested that a decision to excommunicate the League could only be taken at the next Party conference.

Nevertheless, Sir Stafford Cripps is not deterred in his action. Happily he finds himself in the company like Prof. Harold Laski and Mr. Brailsford, whose services to the Labour Party have been significantly tremendous. Perhaps, if Sir Stafford is expelled, instead of being temporarily suspended, the loss that the Labour Party will suffer in the country will tell on its propaganda value. That is the reason which persuades Mr. Bevin to take the view that Sir Stafford should be treated generously. Mr. Bevin recognises the potential spokesman for the Labour Party in Sir Stafford though on occasions he had caused embarrassment to the Party leaders necessitating only recently to disown Sir Stafford's view in relation to a war with Germany. However, the loss of Sir Stafford to the Labour Party will distinctly be a gain to the Communists and the I.L.P.ers. The "United Front" leaders will in future appear on the same platform, their publications will sound the same note, and although the official statements issued on Sunday night disclaim any open hostility to the Labour Party, the expulsion of the Socialist League will invite a criticism of the official Labour Party executive. Now onward Sir Stafford, Mr. Maxton and Mr. Pollitt will be a 'draw' in the country and they will probably have big audiences who will be told of the obvious retreat of the Labour Party from militant Socialism during the last few years.

An All-Irish Convention

With reference to the recent Anglo-Irish talks between Mr. De Valera and Mr Malcolm MacDonald, it is suggested that prominent supporters of the Free State Government feel that, while the annual Ard-Fheis, last November, endorsed the President's outline of the Constitution, the rank-and-file of the Party should be given an opportunity to approve of the complete draft. Northern Ireland's position, it is reported, will also figure on the agenda at the Convention, and Ulster representatives may be invited to attend. This is an astute and diplomatic move. If Northern Ireland is represented at the convention and approves the Constitution—in which it is not mentioned—it will meet the criticism of the President's opponents that the Free State Government has recognised partition and will rob them of an effective election slogan. Presuming the convention is held, it will be followed by the first reading of the Constitution and dissolution of the Dail Headquarters of the Fianna Fail and Mr. Cosgrave's United Ireland Party, it is further reported, are already stacked with election literature, printed in anticipation of the dissolution.

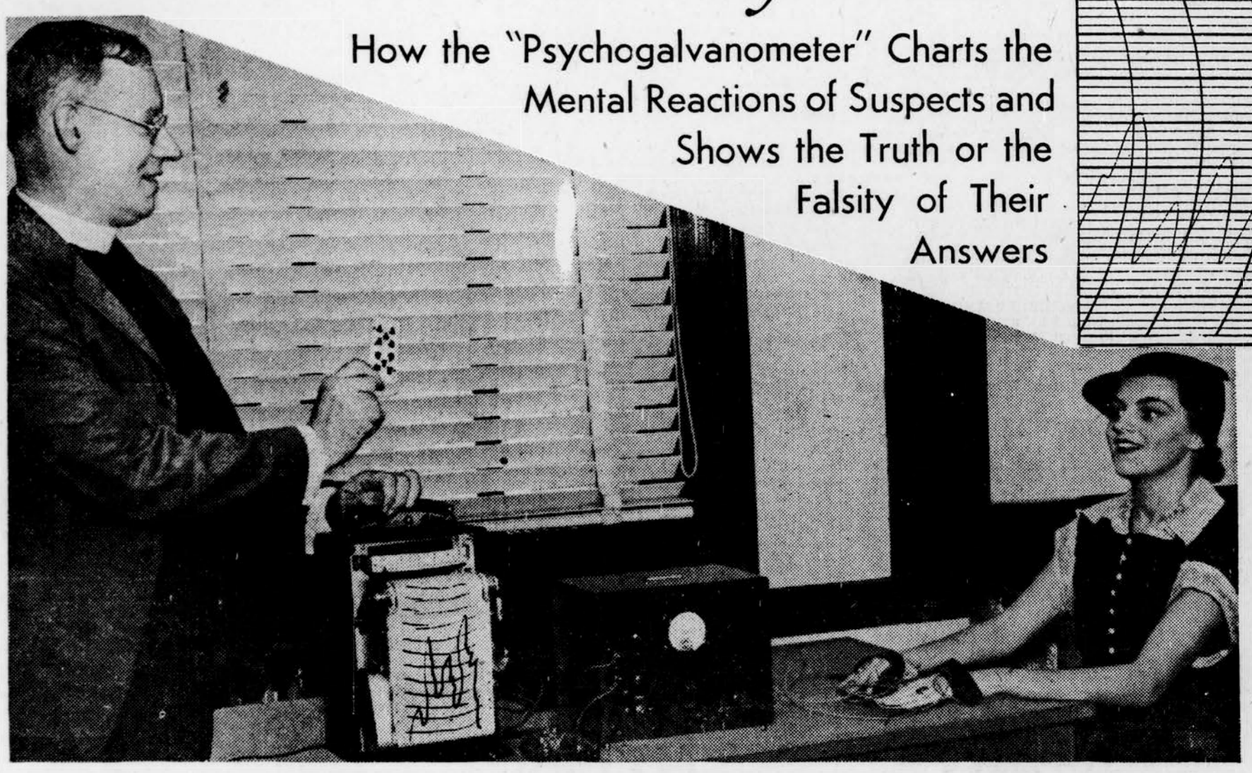
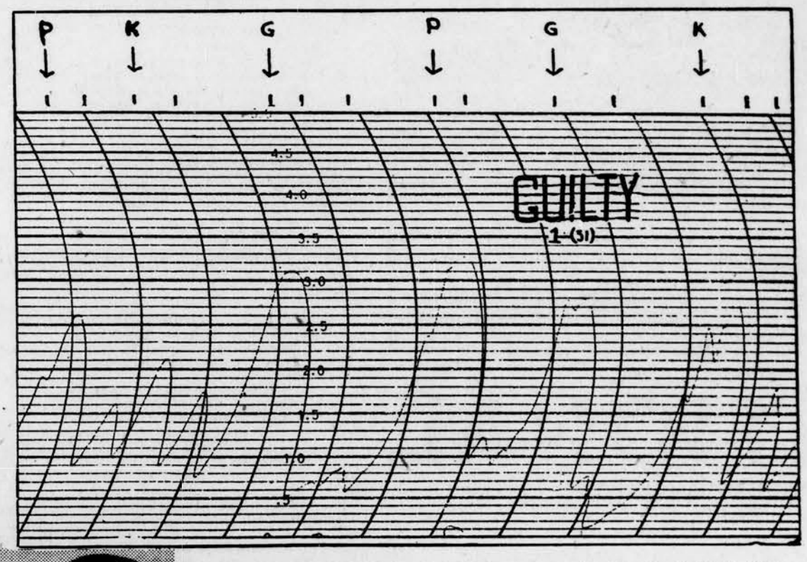
A Mind-Reading Machine to Solve Crime Mysteries

How the "Psychogalvanometer" Charts the Mental Reactions of Suspects and Shows the Truth or the Falsity of Their Answers



Demonstrating the Method of Using the "Psychogalvanometer," an Electrical Device Designed to Record the Mental Reactions of a Subject to Questions Asked to Detect the Truth or Falsity of the Replies, by Getting the Subject's Reactions in a Test with Playing Cards, Which Proved the Accuracy of the Machine.



Section of a Graph Made by the Psychogalvanometer, Showing in Vertical Lines the Reaction of a "Murder" Suspect in Answering Important Questions. Great Mental Disturbance Is Indicated by the Negative Replies to Three Critical Questions, Whose Answers Are Shown to Coincide by the Peaks of the Lines P, K and G, and Are Taken as Proof of Guilt.

GUILTY!"

That was the one-word verdict that fell from the lips of the chief of detectives at police headquarters. The crime official's positive assertion of the prisoner's guilt was not secured through any so-called "third-degree" methods to force a "confession" from an unwilling suspect. In fact, the prisoner, who was being held on the charge of murder, actually was not asked any direct questions during his examination as to whether he was guilty or innocent. A new procedure in solving crime mysteries was the method used actually to make the prisoner "chart" his own mind and thus reveal its secrets. Although the prisoner lied in answer to the questions of the chief of detectives, he also told the truth, the information being "extracted" by a method which is held practically to be infallible.

The scene just described is one which may soon be enacted in the police headquarters of great cities and other centers, as the result of the invention of a mind-charting device perfected by Father W. G. Summers, who is head of the Department of Psychology at Fordham University. This electrical instrument, which is popularly called a "lie detector," is scientifically known as a "psychogalvanometer."

The device, as shown in the accompanying illustration which pictures Father Summers demonstrating his invention, is seen to consist of two parts. One of these closely resembles a radio receiving set and the other, on which the inventor's left hand is resting, is the mechanism controlling the chart on which the subject's reactions are accurately recorded.

The part of the psychogalvanometer that resembles a radio set contains a system of balanced electric circuits. The input of a human body can be amplified inside from zero to 350 times.

The electrical charge in any human body is such a small fraction of a milliampere that it is very difficult to record graphically. The psychogalvanometer invented by Father Summers, however, overcomes this by a system of amplification, which is not only made visible, but the difference in the reactions of various types of individuals are also easily observed.

When a subject is to be tested by the psychogalvanometer, he is seated at a table on which have been placed the two parts of the device. A terminal which is connected to the instrument, is attached to each of the subject's wrists, as shown. The device is then connected to an electrical outlet.

The chart reproduced here is the recorded reactions of a subject used in a demonstration to solve a "murder" mystery. The replies to the questions asked are indicated by the vertical lines of the graph, reading left to right.

The first two vertical lines are insignificant. The third one, which is indicated by the letter K, is very important, as it signifies that the murder subject was very greatly disturbed mentally when in answer to the question, "Did you murder this man?" an untruthful denial was made.

The vertical line indicated by the letter K is the first critical question asked the suspect. However, the fact that there is a response to this first question does not indicate whether the prisoner is guilty or not. The important thing the investigator notes is that the answers shown by the vertical lines marked G and P also indicate excitement and a strong reaction to these two questions. Since, therefore, the lines K, G and P represent the suspect's answers to three critical questions and the answers to all three of them coincide, the conclusion reached from a reading of the chart is that the prisoner is guilty of murder, as shown by his negative answers and recorded on the chart as follows:

K. "Did you kill this man?" Answer, "No."

G. "Did you see him killed?" Answer, "No."

P. "Do you know who killed him?" Answer, "No."

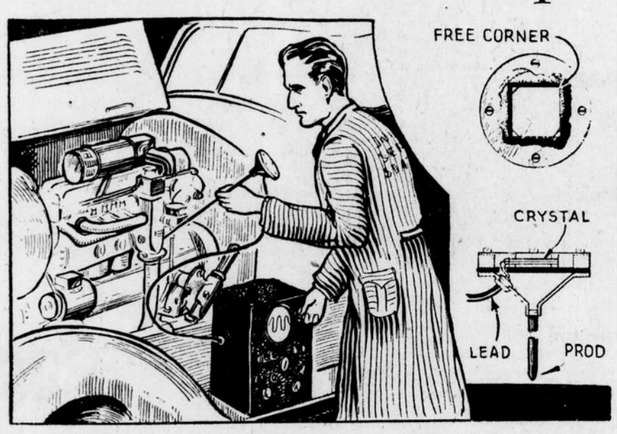
Why House Divided Against Itself Did Not Fall

This House, Jointly Possessed, Was Cut into Halves When One of the Owners Sold His Half. It Was Moved Away, Leaving the Other Half.

THERE is an adage, centuries old, to the effect that "a house divided against itself cannot stand." One house, however, that is an amazing exception to this bit of ancient wisdom is found in Newburyport, Massachusetts. This particular structure not only was divided against itself, and did not fall, but half of it stood and the other half was moved away.

This strange state of affairs was brought about by the building of a grade crossing whose right of way was through half of the house which was equally owned by two men. One of the owners was satisfied with the price offered for the house and sold his half of the structure. The other owner, however, refused to sell his half. The authorities, therefore, cut the house in halves and moved away the part they were able to buy, leaving the other half standing, as shown in the illustration.

A Motor Car "Stethoscope"



The Device Which Enables a Motor Car Mechanic Quickly and Accurately to Diagnose Engine Trouble.

MOTOR car mechanics are now enabled to diagnose engine ills in somewhat the same manner that a physician uses his stethscope to "sound out" the condition of a patient. The accompanying illustration shows this new device which detects engine trouble and indicates the cause, thus equipping the mechanic with similar means of detecting motor trouble as a physician detects defects in human heart or lungs.

To understand the principle utilized recall the well-known fact that automobile mechanics are able to diagnose the trouble of an "ailing" car just by listening to the more or less regular rhythm of the motor noise.

The new device enables the mechanic to find out the reason for the engine trouble without dissembling the motor, even if he is not gifted with a "good ear" and does not have an excellent memory for noises and what they indicate.

How this diagnosing of engine trouble is done is shown in the insert at the right upper corner of the drawing. A piece of Rochelle salt is fastened into a mounting at three corners, but the fourth is left free to be able easily to vibrate. This mounting is brought in contact with any vibrating object, directly, or through a rod. Of course, the mounting quivers and the crystal vibrates. Now comes the main trick: This Rochelle crystal generates small, but nevertheless, characteristic impulses. These electrical impulses are sent into a cathode ray tube, a device which is also used in television to convert electrical impulses into television pictures.

The mechanic switches his cathode ray tube into action, and a curve is shown on the screen of the tube. He then has an accurate diagnosis of the engine trouble.

Making World Fire-proof With a Mineral Rock

A Complete Suit of Asbestos, Including Helmet, Mask, Gloves and Shoes, Which Enables the Wearer to Resist Heat as High as 1,500 Degrees Fahrenheit.

ASBESTOS, because it imprisons stagnant air between its fibrous particles of non-combustible minerals, is making the world fireproof. This name of this substance, which the ancient Greeks knew all about, is a Greek word and was first applied by Pliny to a mineral which was mined in Greece and was later found to exist in Italy. Today the world supplies come chiefly from Canada and South Africa.

This mineral rock is composed of iron and aluminum, and oddly, since it is fireproof, calcium and magnesium.

The first actual known use for absestos for fireproofing was in the days when the Greeks, and later the Romans, manufactured burial shrouds out of it. The bodies were wrapped in the threads so that after the funeral fire died down, the ashes of the body could be separated from those of the fuel.

When the Emperor Charlemagne heard of asbestos he brought back from one of his trips a tablecloth made of that material. It could be put in a fire and burned clean.

It was found that thin, silky threads of the mineral as long as six feet could be dug out of the ground, crushed and separated into a fibrous kind of plaster that could be used for a packing to insulate heat in the new steam engines. From that use as a packing in joints, laboratory research began to discover other uses for asbestos. Mixed with ordinary plasters it made heat-resisting panels and bricks for furnaces, and the thousand and one things which harness heat to power.

Heat is not only the basis of all life, but also is the basis of all fear. Humanity demanded that Nature's sure defense against fire should be turned to preventive uses, and so the secret of weaving the fibrous threads of ore was discovered to turn the rock into a pliable medium that could be adapted to a thousand personal uses. Today, asbestos is woven into fireproof blankets, gloves for airmen, suits for firemen, and fireproof walls and ceilings for houses.

The complete asbestos suit, with asbestos helmet and boots, came next. Secure in them, men can today crawl about inside boiler furnaces to detect faults while the furnace is being stoked, breathing naturally from an oxygen tank. A man recently stood a temperature of 1,500 degrees F. for three and a half minutes wearing such a suit.

How Books Are Given Gilt Edges

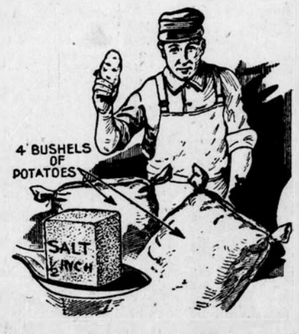
ONE of the commonest uses of gold-leaf is that of giving the edges of books a gold color. This requires a special skill.

The books which are to be given edges of gold are first stacked up. Then the edges are scraped and covered with a thin coating of glue. Next the workman picks up a sheet of the gold-leaf with a cloth of georgette crepe tightly stretched on a small rack which he carefully sets down on the glue-covered surface. After placing each sheet of gold-leaf in this way the workman quickly and lightly passes the cloth over his hair to obtain the necessary oil and electricity for placing the gold-leaf which is then polished.

Your Daily Dose of Salt

IF one had to depend solely upon potatoes as a means of getting his daily dose of salt, it is estimated that some persons, at least, would have to eat every day double their weight in "spuds."

Sodium, which is present largely as salt, is most necessary to the human body, and is, consequently, an important item in the diet. It is found in many different foods, especially in milk and meat. It is for this reason that additional salt is required in a vegetable diet. This is indicated by the fact that grazing animals are attracted by "salt licks" and that salt is more highly prized by those peoples whose diet is mainly vegetable. In some parts of the world, in fact, salt is so highly prized that it is used as a medium of exchange.



A Person of Average Size, Living on an Exclusive Diet of Potatoes, Would Have to Eat Four Bushels of the Spuds Every Day to Obtain the One-Half Inch Cube of Salt Daily That Is Required by His Body.

Tests made by physicians indicate that the average person requires daily a quantity of salt equal to a one-half inch cube. If the diet consisted of potatoes alone, then one would have to eat four bushels every day.

Trigger Finger

TRIGGER finger is often diagnosed as "congenital contraction" of the thumb, according to Doctor S. A. Jahss in the Journal of the American Medical Association. The exact reason for this is quite obvious when one hears the almost stereotyped and meager history given by the mother to the doctor. "My child holds the end of the thumb bent and cannot straighten it. If I try to straighten it, the child cries and pulls the hand away."

There is only one treatment and that is surgical. It consists of dividing the thickened and constricted sheath longitudinally until the swelling of the tendon moves freely.

Good Trade Buying Of Near Months Cotton

INCREASED OFFERINGS OF NEW CROP

General Sentiment Divided

Bombay, Jan. 30.

The New York cotton futures market showed a distinctly divided sentiment on Friday.

Encouragement was derived from reports of a settlement of the Pacific Coast Maritime. Strike with expectations of an early settlement of the motor dispute. The market met with resistence around 12.60 for May with new outside buying less active.

The market opened barely steady and was less active and declined on lower Liverpool cables and more favourable flood news which induced domestic and foreign liquidation.

Prices later rallied partially on good trade buying of near months and Liverpool buying May Spot demand was fair for best grades with offerings limited. Finally there was active trade support for near months.

Expectations of increased area under cotton cultivation next season induced free offerings and it is generally believed that present prices are high enough for the next year's crop.

It is too early to form any definite idea regarding the new crop but statistical position of this year's crop is strong and grade differences as fixed for the loan cotton, give little hope for increased offerings. We believe it safe to lean on the Bull side and prefer purchases on all declines.

NEW YORK PRICES

The New York Cotton futures market opened at a decline of 6 points with March 12.74 and under increased selling a further decline of 3 points was registered with March 12.71 which was the lowest level for the day. LIVERPOOL MARKET

The Liverpool Cotton futures market opened at a decline of 5 points. There was Bombay selling and hedge selling which met trade buying and calling. Middling American Spot cotton prices closed 4 points down at 7.34d. per l b.

EGYPTIAN COTTON.

Messrs. Devkaran Nanjee have received the following telegrams from their foreign friends:—

Liverpool:—"Decline caused by selling orders from Bombay, otherwise no new feature."

New York:—"Liquidation caused by diminishing fears of damage by floods. Trade buying old crop months. Indications of Brazilian hedge selling in December."

Messrs. Chunilal Mehta and Co. Ltd. have received to-day the following cable information from their Foreign Friends:—

Liverpool.—Mixed trading market. Some liquidations on more reassuring flood news. New crops offered more freely on unrestricted production talk. It is generally thought that loan cotton differentials will have to be modified if much cotton is to be sold

Liverpool.—Market nervous, pending extent of damage cannot be ascertained yet. Spinners are fixing the price of cotton bought on "call". The "spot" market is active. The sales consist largely of growths not American.

Liverpool.—Heavy trade calling strengthened market for nears. Heavy straddle selling and liquidation new crops on belief prices are high enough. Advise caution bull side for the present.

New York.—Spot houses bought nears and sold distants. New outside buying absorb liquidation.

Active Buying In Cotton Mill Shares

TATA STEELS VERY STEADY

General Feeling Bullish

BOMBAY: January 30.

As anticipated, there was a fairly active buying in Cotton Mill shares, which resulted in a sharp rise in prices.

A prominent Operator was reported buying freely Bombay Dyeing shares on hopes of increased dividend and the general feeling is now becoming definitely bullish.

Raw Cotton prices are likely to harden, as local prices are unduly low, and any improvement in cotton prices is likely to have a favourable effect on the textile industry.

Bombay Dyeing shares opened at Rs. 895 and steadily advanced under active buying and closed at about the highest level of the day at Rs. 917.

There was a slightly better enquiry for Cement shares, which also improved. Indian Cements opened at Rs. 518 and improved to Rs. 520.

It is generally believed that in sympathy with improvement in Steel prices in foreign markets local prices will also be raised. This belief induced some buying in Steel shares. Ordinary shares were also in keen demand and they closed at Rs. 294-8, while Dfds. reached a new high level of Rs. 1,267-8.

The market was open to-day for one hour and there was a fairly good turnover. The general feeling continues bullish.

Sharp Conflict Of Opinion Among Princes

State Must Be Free To Withdraw At Any Time

FOUR-FOLD DEMAND OF ANTI-FEDERATION GROUP

NEW DELHI, Jan. 30.

It is understood that the sharp conflict of opinion represented by the different schools of thought is being expressed in Indian Princes' circles in New Delhi between those who favour federation and those who opposed it.

The pro-Federationists are believed to hold the view that almost all the safeguards demanded by the Indian Princes have been incorporated in the Government of India Act. The exact wording of some clauses, however, required elucidation which could be achieved through the instrument of accession. Although, the financial aspect of Federation required serious consideration, it did not present such difficulties which could not be overcome by negotiations with Government.

OPPOSITION VIEW POINT.

The anti-Federationists, on the other hand have formulated a four-fold demand which could not be met without amendment of the Act itself. This group, inter alia, demands (1) that the ruler of a state should have the right to withdraw from federation at any time; the tenure of membership of states representatives of the Federal Legislature should be during the pleasure of the ruler of states; (3) the instrument of instructions to the Viceroy should be incorporated in the instrument of accession; (4) the position of Indian states should be clearly defined in the Act and be in consonance with case law of the Privy Council pertaining to federations within the British Empire.

FINANACIAL IMPLICATIONS

Regarding the financial implications of federation they assert that even Sir Bhupendranath Mitra and Mr. Manu Subedar who were recently appointed as Financial experts to the Chamber of Princes have not in their reports made such a case which would induce the Princes to join the federation as outlined by the Government of India Act. It may be explained that Sir B. N. Mitra and Mr. Subedar have submitted their reports to the Financial Committee set up by the Chancellor of the Chamber and on the basis of which a unanimous report has been submitted to the Chamber for ratification.

TWO VIEW-POINTS.

Sir Bhupen Mitra and Mr. Manu Subedar, it is understood, have reached different conclusions regarding the financial implications of federation. The important points stressed by Sir Bhupen Mitra are that (1) the Government of India Act gives wide powers and imposes great responsibilities on the Governor-General in his discretion. These provisions are however fundamental, to the act and no limitations on the powers of the Governor-General could be imposed by the instrument of Accession.

In regard to the exercise of those powers the Governor-General would continue to be under the superintendence of the Secretary of State. (2) If any State feels that its joining the Federation would mean a sacrifice of the revenues which it would receive or continue to receive irrespective of its joining the federation and which revenues, from its point of view could be employed more usefully to meet the expanding needs and requirements of its people the obvious course for such a state would be not to join the Federation. But it may be that joining the Federation will bring some advantages to the ruler and the people which could not be assessed in terms of money. In that case, the obvious course for the State would be to agree to only such sacrifice of revenue as would make its instrument of accession acceptable to the Crown.

TAXABLE CAPACITY.

Mr. Manu Subedar's contention seems to be (1) if a State were to make no reservation in the instrument of accession with regard to financial matters, it would find itself liable under the act to all taxes which are levied by the Federation on the provinces under section 137 and 138 and to all new taxes to which the provinces will make themselves liable under sections 137 and 140 of the Act (2) From the point of view of the States, it is important to emphasise that the taxable capacity of the people of the States is not only lower than that of the people of advanced provinces like Bombay but also lower than those in some of the deficit provinces, like Sind and Orissa. The States therefore are entitled to resist the demand that they should contribute to the Federation on the same basis per head as would be collected from British India provinces. Mr. Manu Subedar, however, is of opinion that "the more practical issue is whether some general formula by mutual agreement of British India and Indian States representatives cannot be evolved by which some equitable adjustment may be made tending to reduce the inequality." Pari Passu he warns the States against the risk of staying away from the Federation. "As more States join the Federation the risk to those who remain outside becomes greater and the possibility of more concessions being secured by staying out is to be discounted against the fact that die-hard States may find ranged against them, not merely the whole of British India but also all those States which have already joined the Federation. Such mixed federal authorities are not likely to show any tenderness to the claims of individual States to a different and better treatment with regard to financial and economic issues." Further forms of payment or tributes which are repugnant to the notion of federation are eliminated conditionally. "Fortunately section 148 of the act leaves discretion to His Majesty to make remissions at any time but he would be an optimist who would expect interference in financial matters of federation from London."

Mr. Manu Subedar clearly is of the opinion that heads of revenue of the Central Government which will become federal hereafter will show increasing returns. "In particular I feel that pessimism in regard to railways has been overdone and that revenues from posts and telegraphs are bound to reflect improved conditions."

"UNEQUAL BURDEN"

After clearing the ground Mr. Manu Subedar points out that the burden of federation will be unequal and will be heavier on the provinces than on the States. Interconnected with this is the advantage that the States will receive with regard to powers of borrowing on the guarantee of the federation. "The privilege of borrowing under the guarantee of Federation is valuable as it would be highest credit and loans will be at the same rate as those that are raised by the Federation for its own purposes whereas loans by a State on its own guarantee may or may not be subscribed and in any event will be raised at much higher rate of interest."

Lastly Mr. Manu Subedar recommends various safeguards which the States should secure for themselves in the instrument of accessior

MR. SUBEDAR'S CONTENTIONS

But it may be that joining the Federation will bring some advantages to the ruler and the people which could not be assessed in terms of money. In that case the obvious course for the State would be to agree to only such sacrifice of revenue as would make its Instrument of Accession acceptable to the crown.

Mr. Manu Subedar's contention seems to be: —

(1) If a State were to make no reservation in the Instrument of Accession with regard to financial matters, it would find itself liable under the Act to all taxes which are levied by the Federation on the Provinces under Sections 137 and 138 and to all new taxes to which the Provinces will make themselves liable under Sections 137 and 140 of the Act.

(2) From the point of view of the States, it is important to emphasise that the taxable capacity of the people of the States is not only lower than that of the people of advanced provinces like Bombay, but also lower than those in some of the deficit provinces, like Sind and Orissa. The States, therefore, are entitled to resist the demand that they should contribute to the Federation on the same basis per head as would be collected from British Indian Provinces.

PRACTICAL ISSUE.

Mr. Manu Subedar, however, is of opinion that the more practical issue is whether some general formula by mutual agreement of British Indian and Indian States representatives cannot be evolved by which some equitable adjustment may be made tending to reduce the inequality."

'Pari passu' he warns the States against the risk of staying away from the Federation. "As more States join the Federation the risk to those who remain outside becomes greater and the possibility of more concessions being secured by staying out is to be discounted against the fact that die-hard States may find ranged against them, not merely the whole of British India, but also all those States which have already joined the Federation. Such mixed Federal Authorities are not likely to show any tenderness to the claims of individual States to a different and better treatment with regard to financial and economic issues." Further forms of payment or tributes which are repugnant to the notion of Federation are eliminated conditionally. "Fortunately Section 146 of the Act leaves discretion to His Majesty to make remissions at any time, but he would be an optimist who would expect interference in financial matters of Federation from London.—A.P.

REPORT OF CONFLICT CONTRADICTED

NEW DELHI, Jan. 31.

As a result of further enquiries, it is reliably understood that the report of a conflict of opinion in the princes circles is not quite correct.

The so-called four-fold demands of ministers alleged to be opposed to federation have not come up for discussion and in fact are not likely to do so.

The deliberations of the Committee have so far been unanimous and have been directed towards the end to make federation possible. The only difference of opinion seems to be about the time table of the introduction of federation.—A. P.

FLAG STANDS FOR NATION'S PRESTIGE

Vindicate It By Voting Solidly For Congressmen

The monthly flag hoisting ceremony was held at the Congress House on Sunday morning, when Mrs. Sarojini Naidu unfurled the National Flag.

The Bombay National Guards were present on the occasion.

Mrs. Sarojini Naidu exhorting the volunteers to abide by discipline whatever be the orders issued to them said that when the time came again every one's regard for national honour would be put to test.

RURAL SUPPORT TO CONGRESS

She travelled through the rural areas which were sometimes inaccessable by car, and which had not even properly laid roads. But everywhere she met with the same splendid response to the call of the Congress. No doubt they were poor, they were not all educated, but when it was a question of national honour and national self-respect they all were prepared to stand by the Congress.

Given that devotion among the people, she was sure that a nation could achieve, its will.

ON RAVI'S BANKS.

This National Flag was hoisted on a midnight on the banks of the river Ravi. A time would soon come, Mrs. Sarojini Naidu continued, when the National Flag would fly with full glory. At present the National flag reminded one of the prestige of the nation which would be going to the polls shortly. And it was the duty of every one to uphold the prestige of the nation.

DUTY TO OBEY FIRST.

Mrs. Sarojini Naidu exhorted the volunteers to consider it their duty to "obey" first without a question. If the people had such a sense of discipline their goal would be much nearer. At this time of trial, every citizen must become a volunteer of the Congress and help the Congress to attain success at the polls.

A TRUE VOLUNTEER.

The speaker referred to the late Mr. Vaikunt Desai, who passed away on Saturday night, and said that he was a true volunteer in every sense of the word. Even in his old age, he went to Faizpur and expressed his desire to serve the nation. He worked for nearly 25 years as a volunteer and his contribution to the national cause was not a little.

EMULATE HIS EXAMPLE.

His memory would live and she hoped, his example would inspire the other volunteers who were ready to serve the country.

Mr. Nagindas T. Master, Vice-President of the Bombay Provincial Congress Committee, welcoming Mrs. Sarojini Naidu in their midst after her strenuous tour in the north, appealed to the voters to vote for the three Congress candidates in the Bombay City South General Constituency.

CONGRESSMEN, NO COMMUNALISTS

Voters Duty On Polling Day

At the monthly flag salutation held at the 2nd Khatargally, Bhuleshwar, Mr. Nagindas T. Master, who unfurled the flag on Sunday morning, expressed the hope that Bombay would lead the rest of the country in its support of the Congress candidates. He advised the voters to distribute their votes equally among the Congress candidates, as no communal issue was involved in the Congress programme and they were contesting the elections as Congressmen and Indians and not as communalists.

Mr. S. K. Patil said that according to the latest reports in the Anglo-Indian Press, Congress majorities were expected in seven out of the nine provinces and appealed to the voters to uphold the prestige of the City, whose loyalty to the Congress was talked of the world over.

Similar functions were held in the Fort, Mandvi, Byculla, Parel and Dadar.
